UNIT 1

THE MIRROR

Look at the cartoon given below.

This cartoon shows the reaction of the viewers when the first ever motion picture was shown in Paris. It was a 50 second long film directed by Lumiere brothers. (Jan 25, 1896)

What do you see in the cartoon?

What are the viewers doing?

What did they expect to happen?

THE ISLAND

We have mobile phones, laptops, smart boards and many other gadgets today, which make our life easy and comfortable. But there was a time when people didn't have any of these.

The African folk tale you are about to read, describes a humorous incident that happened at a time when people hadn't even heard of many of the things that we use now.

Long long ago, a fisherman and his wife lived on an island. It was a lonely island. The people of the island led a quiet and simple life. They had no electricity, no phone, no television, no newspaper. They had no hair brush nor mirrors either!

The only way the islanders came to know about the world outside was through the ships that passed the island.

The sailors in the ship threw old worn out toothbrushes, broken buckets, torn shoes etc. into the sea. When these things came ashore, the people of the island collected them.

1. Is the island a place like yours? How is it different?

2. How did the islanders know about the world outside?

3. Why did the islanders collect the things came ashore?

FATHER COMES ALIVE

One day, the fisherman was walking along the seashore. After the death of his father, it was for the first time he was going out. ‘Oh, my father! How loving he was...!’ he thought. ‘Never can I see him again.’

Suddenly, a flash of light fell on his eyes. Something shining was lying on the sand. He picked it up and looked at it. He had never seen such a thing before. He saw a face in it. He was scared. He threw it away. But after a while, he walked towards it again. He picked it up and saw the face in it again.

4. Why did he think that the face in the mirror was his father's?

He had never seen his own face before. He thought it was his father's face.

He was very happy. He thanked God for sending his father's picture. He smiled at the picture. What a surprise! It smiled back!

5. What do you think the fisherman will do with the mirror?

He turned the mirror to see if his father was behind it. But he could not see anyone. Once more he turned it to his face. 'Ah, my loving father!' He spoke to his father. His father's lips moved but he heard nothing. He became sad. He cried. His father too seemed to cry. He held the mirror close to his heart and went home.

6. Where will he keep the mirror?
Will he hang it on the wall?
Will he keep it among his clothes?
Or will he hide it somewhere?

THE FIGHT

The fisherman reached home and called his wife in excitement. ‘See, who's there in it!’ He showed her the mirror.

She looked eagerly into it. She saw the face of a woman in it.

‘Oh, my mother! She looks so young!’ She was thrilled. ‘Where did you get this thing from?’

‘Mother! Whose mother?’

The fisherman turned the mirror towards his face.

7. ‘Oh, my mother! She looks so young!’
Why did ‘the mother’ look young?

‘It's my father.’

She grabbed the mirror from him and looked into it again.

‘Are you joking? It's my mother!’ she cried out.

The man was annoyed and snatched the mirror

8. What was the reason for the fight between the fisherman and his wife?

from her hands. He looked at it again to assure himself that it was his father.

'There's something wrong with you. You're going crazy. I'll never show you this again,' he said. His wife tried to grab the mirror from him. The fisherman held on to it. They started battling for the mirror. The mirror fell down on the floor and broke into pieces. They stopped fighting and looked at the pieces. The pieces reflected their images.

9. What do you think the fisherman and his wife did when the mirror was broken into pieces?

Let's review the story

1. Why did the man throw the mirror away on seeing a face in it?
2. You can see six pictures along with the story. Pick out sentences from the story that match with each of the pictures.
3. We use many modern devices in our day-to-day life (laptops, mobile phones, i-pods etc.). Do you think that these devices are essential? Can we live without these? Conduct a debate on 'Are we dependent on modern devices too much?'

Let's write

1. The story ends with the sentence, 'The pieces reflected their images.'

The fisherman and his wife did not speak for some time. Then they started a conversation. Write the conversation between them.

2. Let's enact the whole story in the form of a skit?
Discuss in groups and prepare the skit. Your teacher will help you.

What are the events in the story?

Where do the events take place?

Who are the characters?

What do they say?

Write them in the boxes below.

Describe your experience of presenting/watching the skit.

THE MAGIC MIRROR

On a rainy afternoon, having nothing to do, Ammu and her brother Arun were bored. So they sat looking out at the rain. To pass time, they decided to explore the attic of their home. The attic was dark and dusty. They came across a mirror which was surprisingly clean and shiny. While they looked at their reflection in it, the old grandfather clock in the attic struck five.

‘That’s weird,’ Arun said. ‘I thought the clock was junk.’ They felt the mirror was calling them. Arun stretched his hand towards the mirror. His hand went right through the mirror, as if it were water. He withdrew his hand hastily. They looked at each other in amazement. ‘Shall we step into the mirror?’ Arun asked. Ammu nodded. One, two, three... they stepped into the mirror.

Suddenly they found themselves in a forest. It was quite dark. The leaves of the trees overhead blocked the sunlight. ‘It’s just like in books where something magical happens.’ said Arun, ‘It’s so exciting!'

They found their way out of the forest into fields of blue and red flowers. Butterflies were flitting from flower to flower. The fields were lit by the evening sun. Standing in the field was a white horse with silver wings. ‘Wow, it’s Pegasus, the winged horse!’ exclaimed Ammu. They walked towards it and Pegasus raised its head. ‘Who are you?’ asked Pegasus. Arun answered shyly, ‘I am Arun and this is Ammu.’ Pegasus looked at them curiously. ‘Where did you come from?’ Pegasus asked. ‘We came through a magic mirror,’ said Ammu. ‘Well, that would have been exciting!’ said Pegasus. ‘It will soon be dark. I had better go home,’ said Pegasus. ‘Can we come too?’ asked the children. ‘Of course, climb onto my back,’ Pegasus said. They scrambled onto Pegasus’ back. They soared through the air and finally landed on soft, warm grass under a big tree.

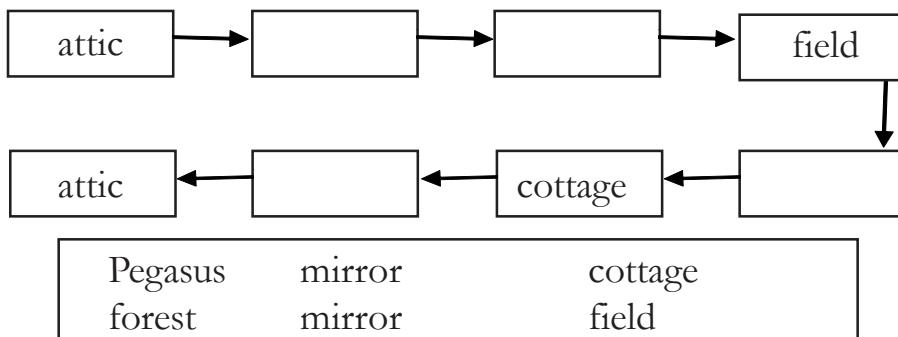

They then flew through a forest, a field and over a hill to a cottage. A man in a blue robe opened the door and asked them to follow him in. They followed him into a room where they saw a mirror. It looked exactly like the mirror in their attic. ‘Step into the mirror and you’ll be home,’ said Pegasus. The children thanked Pegasus. They stepped into the mirror and found themselves back in the attic.

It was still raining. Arun looked at Ammu and said, ‘That was the most exciting adventure we have ever had!’ ‘Yes, really!’ Ammu said. They heard their mother calling them. They got down from the attic and walked into the kitchen just in time for dinner. They told their mother about their adventure. But she did not believe it. When they went to bed they dreamed of going through the mirror and having more exciting adventures.

Check how well you read

1. Arun and Ammu stepped into the magic mirror. Can you identify the places and things they saw? Write the names of places, beings and things in the boxes given below in proper order and complete the flow chart.

2. Here are the events of the story ‘The Magic Mirror’. They are given in jumbled order. Arrange them in proper order and narrate the story.

- Pegasus took them for a flight.
- They entered the magic land.
- They stepped through the magic mirror again.
- It was a rainy afternoon.
- They saw a magic mirror.
- They found themselves back in the attic.
- They reached a cottage in a forest.
- Arun and Ammu decided to explore the attic.
- The kids thanked Pegasus.
- The grandfather clock struck five.

Madhuri Sawant

What does the mirror usually reflect?
Why doesn't the poet want the mirror to reflect her eyes, hair and teeth?
What do you think is the message of the poem?

Activity 1

Complete the riddle about the mirror.

I'm plain, but I'm true.
When you cry, I never laugh
When you laugh, I never cry
When you are cool, I'm not
When you are hot, I'm not
When you are happy,
When happy.

Activity 2

Frame three more riddles about the mirror. An example is given below.

I help see your face. Who am I?

.....

.....

Activity 3

Read the following sentence from the story.

He picked it up and looked at it.

This can be split into two sentences:

He picked it up.

He looked at it.

Similarly, some of the sentences from the story ‘The Mirror’ are combined using the word ‘and’. Split them into two. One is done for you.

He picked it up and saw the face in it again.

He picked it up.

He saw the face in it again.

He held the mirror close to his heart and went home.

Pick out two more sentences from the story and split them into two sentences.

b.

.....
.....

Look at these sentences. Combine them using ‘and’.

She looked eagerly into it.

She saw the face of a woman in it.

.....

You have seen that the word ‘and’ connects two sentences. Is ‘and’ used to connect two sentences only? What else is ‘and’ used for? Give examples.

Activity 4

Read the following lines aloud.

A sailor sailing through the sea
Found his shoes torn and worn.
Then he threw them into the sea.
The waves brought them ashore
And they rested on the shore.

A crab was crawling on the sand.
Her eyes fell on the shoe.
Then she peeped into the shoe
To assure himself there was no one.
And she made it her pretty home.

A crazy wave rushed to grab the shoe
And took it back into the sea.
The crab was scared and she screamed.
She quickly crawled out of the shoe
And swam back to the shore.

Certain words are underlined in the above lines. You can find the same words in the story ‘The Mirror’. Refer to the glossary and find out the meaning of these words. Frame sentences of your own using these words.

Activity 5

Look at the following expressions from the story:

Oh, my father!

He had never seen his own face before.

The underlined words show ownership or relationship.

Now, study the picture given below.

Everybody's Business

Look at the girl at the sweets counter. Her name is Vismaya.

Do you know who is at the toys counter? His name is Varun.

Who are the ones at the books counter? Their names are Fazil and Amala.

'My sweets' counter has the highest sales,' says Vismaya.

'Our books' counter is visited by many students,' say Fazil and Amala.

Who is the real owner of the shop?

All the children of the school are its owners. It is their co-operative store. You also can start your own shops in your schools.

Now, fill in the blanks with suitable words from the box.

his, her, their, my, our, your

Manu said, 'Mom, I'm going to wash _____ hands.' Mother said, 'You're a good boy'. She kissed Manu on _____ cheek. 'Manu, do you think all _____ friends wash _____ hands before eating?' Mother asked. 'Yes, they all wash _____ hands before they eat. 'Do your teachers ask you to develop good habits like this?' Mother asked. 'Yes, _____ Science teacher always tells us about the importance of developing good habits. She tells us the story of _____ son and daughter,' said Manu. 'That's interesting. I must congratulate _____,' Mother said. 'Everybody likes _____,' Manu said.

Activity 6

Read the opening sentences in the story 'The Mirror'.

Long long ago, a fisherman and his wife lived on an island. It was a lonely island. The people of the island led a quiet and simple life.

In the above lines 'a' is used with certain words while 'an' with another word. 'The' is also used with a word. Where do you think 'a', 'an' and 'the' are used?

Let's read a passage written by Rohan, one of your friends. Today we finished a very interesting story in our English class. It is about a fisherman and his wife who got a mirror. They did not understand what it was. They fought over it and it broke into pieces. Our teacher asked us to present the story as a skit. The setting of the story was an island. To make the island, our group piled up benches and desks. But our teacher said that it was an oversized platform. To show that the events happened on a seashore, we placed an umbrella. Arun said that it was an event that happened long ago and the big umbrella we used did not match. We also needed two actors. Rahul agreed to play the fisherman. But we could not find a girl to play the part of the fisherman's wife. So finally I played the fisherman's wife. We needed a mirror. Our English teacher gave us one. Everyone said that our group's performance was good. Unfortunately, the mirror fell from our hands and broke. Poor teacher! She has to buy a new one now.

Pick out from the above passage words that come after 'a', 'an' and 'the' and complete the table.

words with 'a'	words with 'an'	words with 'the'
a fisherman	an island	the story

Now, complete the following story with a, an or the.

One afternoon _____ ox was grazing in _____ field. A small frog in _____ field saw _____ ox. The frog thought, 'I want to become big like _____ ox.' The frog started puffing and swelling. 'Am I as large as _____ ox?' he asked his friends.

'No, no,' they replied. So, the frog puffed himself up more and more, trying to reach the size of _____ ox. 'Now... now?' asked the frog. 'Please, don't try anymore, you are only _____ frog, you can't become _____ ox,' pleaded his friends. But the frog continued to puff and swell, larger and larger until he finally burst.

Look at the picture and complete the description that follows.

A procession is in progress. _____ man is sitting on _____ elephant. _____ man is holding _____ umbrella in his hands. _____ umbrella is well decorated. Many men and children are following _____ elephant. _____ child is holding _____ aeroplane shaped balloon in his hands.

Activity 7

Let's play a game. Form two groups. Each group can select one set of instructions from the table given below. Group A has to give the instructions aloud and Group B has to act accordingly. If the action is correct Group B will get 5 points. If the action is wrong Group A can do it correctly. Group A and Group B can give instructions alternately.

A

Keep the bat under the table.
Throw the ball up in the air.
Put the ball in the box.
Hang the picture on the wall.
Move your hands up and down four times.
Go and stand beside the blackboard.

B

Keep the bag on the desk.
Put the chalk in the box.
Go and stand between the desk and the bench.
Jump over the bench.
Place the notebook on the shelf.
Take the ball from the box.

Now, let's make a list of the words underlined in the instructions. Try to find out similar words from the story 'The Mirror' and add them to the list.

Let's complete the following instructions to prepare vegetable salad, choosing prepositions from the following.

in, with, on, into, from, to, of

- Take onions, tomatoes, chillies and cucumber _____ the vegetable basket.
- After washing them, keep them _____ a plate.
- Cut the vegetables _____ small pieces.
- Add salt and pepper _____ the salad.
- Garnish it _____ coriander leaves.
- Serve the salad _____ a bowl.

Editing

Read the passage given below. There are a few errors in it. They are underlined.

Anwar goes to meet him uncle yesterday. his uncle is a engineer. His apartment is between the post office at the city square. His uncle with his aunt are very friendly to Anwar. He to be loves with his uncle's family.

Edit the passage and rewrite it.

Project Work

Word Bouquet

Read the following tongue-twister as fast as you can.

She sells seashells on the seashore.

Look at the underlined words.

Seashells are shells of beings in the sea.

Seashore is the shore of the sea.

Can you find out some other words related to ‘sea’? List them out. Refer to a dictionary to find out the meaning of these words.

Collect pictures too and compile a picture glossary.

How to process the text

A good introduction to the units will generate interest in the learners. So, it is very important to introduce the units in a meaningful and interesting manner. Identifying the themes of the units will help you plan a good introduction. ‘The confusion of people when exposed to new things’ is the theme discussed in the first unit. ‘Faith’ or ‘innocence of village folk’ is the possible theme in the second unit. The third unit discusses ‘poverty’, ‘orphaned children’ or ‘love and affection among siblings’. You may introduce the units by initiating a discussion, showing a related picture/video or by asking the learners to do an interesting activity based on the themes discussed. The stories are subdivided into smaller units and questions for interaction with the learners are given along with these sub-units. These questions mainly serve four purposes:

- they help to read the picture.
- to elicit the text.
- to connect the learners’ own experiences with the events, persons, places or objects described in the story.
- to help learners predict what is going to happen next.

Let the learners read the text on their own. You may ask them to sit in groups and discuss what they have read. You may interact with the groups and initiate a discussion to help them understand difficult areas. Then you may read the text aloud pausing at the end of meaningful chunks.

How to interact with children

Meaningful interaction with learners is the key to language acquisition. You may use simple English to interact with learners. Classroom interactions like:

Why didn't you bring your pictures?

Please do the first two activities of the unit in pairs.

Why are you so silent?

When will you return the book? etc. will be understood by the learners if asked in meaningful contexts. Encourage children to talk about their habits, likes, dislikes, favourite people/things/places etc.

How to deal with language activities and theatre games

Simple theatre games and interesting language games can greatly help children acquire a second language easily. The activities given in each unit are not intended to be attempted at the end of the transaction of the unit only. If you feel that some of the activities can be done while processing the story, you are free to do so. You may first give these activities as individual tasks with clear instructions. If necessary you can assign the task as pair or group activity with clear instructions to the pairs/groups as to what they should do. Working and playing together in small groups will promote interaction, togetherness and team spirit.

Theatre games also help language acquisition. They will also trigger learners' imagination and make learning a pleasurable experience. A simple theatre game like the following creates ample opportunities for the learners to use language meaningfully.

Divide the learners into two groups and ask them to stand in two lines face to face. Ask all the members of the groups to hold an object each in their hands. Let the members of the groups observe the positions of the members of the other group and the objects in their hands. Ask the members of one of the groups to turn and stand with their backs to the members of the other. Meanwhile the other group rearranges the positions of the members and the things they hold and form another line. The members of the other group are now asked to turn again and face their counterparts. Each one in the group has to come forward and give instructions to the members of the other group to form the line as they observed in the beginning. Instructions like the following can be given:

'Aneesh, please come and stand first in the line on the left end. Hold a pen in your hand. Please collect it from Athira.'

How to conduct learner assessment

Learner assessment is a continuous process and an integral part of learning. You can assess your learners at each stage of the learning process. Informal interactions, interaction questions, reading of the text, association of pictures with the text, language activities and theatre games give you ample opportunities for assessing your learners. Apart from these, you can see two separate pages in the textbook titled 'I can' and 'My Learners' meant especially for assessment. The former is for the unit end self-assessment of the learner and the latter is for your assessment of the learners.

How to use information communication technology

It is always a challenging task for the teacher to catch the attention of very young learners. Learners are exposed to the world of high quality digital audio visual materials these days and attempting to teach them using the old 'chalk and talk' method alone may not turn out to be a fruitful exercise. So every teacher must think about bringing effective audio-visual texts to their classes. The internet is a rich source for such materials. Google Images, YouTube, TeacherTube etc. provide you with materials that can be used effectively in the classroom.

UNIT 2

LETTER TO GOD

White sheep, white sheep,
On a blue hill,
When the wind stops,
You all stand still.
When the wind blows,
You walk away slow.
White sheep, white sheep,
Where do you go?

- Christina Rossetti

Who is the poet talking to?
Who does the poet address as 'white sheep'?

THE PLEASURE OF RAIN

Do you talk to the rain, flowers, birds and clouds? Here is the story of a man who talked to the rain.

The house, the only one in the whole valley, sat on the crest of a low hill. From this height one could see the river and the field of ripe corn dotted with flowers that always promised a good harvest.

The only thing the earth needed was a downpour or at least a shower. Throughout the morning Lenchio had done nothing else but look at the sky towards the northeast. ‘Now we’re really going to get some rain, woman,’ he said.

The woman, who was preparing supper, replied, ‘Yes, God willing.’

During the meal, big drops of rain began to fall. Huge mountains of clouds could be seen approaching. The air was fresh and sweet.

Lenchio went out to have the pleasure of feeling the rain on his body. ‘These aren’t raindrops falling from the sky, they are like new coins. The big drops are tens and the little ones are fives...’

1. How do you think Lenchio knew that it was going to rain?

2. Throughout the morning Lenchio had done nothing. Was he lazy? What do you think?

3. Have you watched the sky when it rains? How does it look?

4. The big drops are tens and the little ones are fives...’ What does Lenchio mean by this?

A NIGHT OF SORROW

He looked at the field of ripe corn with its flowers draped in a curtain of rain. But suddenly a strong wind began to blow. Very large hailstones began to fall.

'It's really getting bad now!' exclaimed Lencho.
'I hope it passes quickly.'

It did not pass quickly. It hailed for an hour on the house, the garden, the hillside, the cornfield and the whole valley. The field was white, as if covered with salt. Not a leaf remained on the trees.

The corn was totally destroyed. The flowers had disappeared from the plants. Lencho's soul was filled with sadness. That night was a sorrowful one.

'This year we will have no corn.

There's no one to help us.

We'll all go hungry this year.'

But in the hearts of all who lived in that solitary house there was a single hope - help from God.

All through the night, Lencho thought only of his one hope - God.

5. Lencho was happy when it started raining. But the happiness didn't last long. What was the reason?

6. Pick out the expressions which tell you that Lencho was sad.

7. What changes did the hailstorm bring to the valley?

AT THE POST OFFICE

Lencho was an ox of a man, working like an animal in the fields. Still, he knew how to write. The following Sunday, at daybreak, he began to write a letter.

It was nothing less than a letter to God.

Dear God

If you don't help me, my family and I will go hungry this year.

I need a hundred pesos in order to sow my field again and to live until the crop comes. Because of the hailstorm you sent, everything is lost.

Hopefully waiting.

Lencho

Lencho

He wrote, ‘To God’ on the envelope and went to the town. At the post office, he pasted a stamp on the letter and dropped it into the mailbox.

8. How does the author describe Lencho?

9. Which expression in the passage tells you that Lencho wrote the letter early in the morning?

10. Why did Lencho write the letter to none other than God?

Letter to God

The postman went to his boss laughing heartily. He showed him the letter to God. The postmaster also broke into a laugh. But immediately he turned serious. 'What faith! I wish I had the faith of the man who wrote this letter. Imagine starting up a correspondence with God!'

The postmaster came up with an idea: send a reply to Lencho from God. But he needed something more than goodwill, ink and paper to answer the letter. He took a collection from the employees of the post office. He himself gave a part of his salary.

But it was impossible for him to put together a hundred pesos. He was able to send the farmer only seventy pesos. He put the money in an envelope addressed to Lencho. He sent a letter along with it. It contained only a signature - God.

11. Immediately after reading the letter the postmaster turned serious. Why?

12. Why did the postmaster take effort to collect money for Lencho?

13. Why was it difficult for the postmaster to collect hundred pesos?

14. What would you do if you were the postmaster?

GOD REPLIES

The following day, Lenco went to the post office earlier than usual. He asked the postman if there was a letter for him. The postman handed a letter to him. The postmaster looked on from the doorway of his office.

Lencho showed not the slightest surprise on seeing the money; such was his confidence, but he became angry when he counted the money. God could not have made a mistake.

Immediately, Lenco went up to the window to ask for paper and ink. He sat at the public writing-table, he started to write. When he finished, he went to the window to buy a stamp. He licked the stamp and then affixed it on the envelope with a thump of his fist.

The moment the letter fell into the mailbox the postmaster went to open it.

15. Why didn't Lenco show any surprise when he got the money?

16. What was the expectation of the postmaster? Did it come true?

17. Why was Lenco angry?

Letter to God

Merciful God,
Of the money that I asked for, only seventy pesos reached me. Send me the rest, since I need it very badly. But don't send it to me through the mail, because the post office employees are a bunch of crooks!

BIRTHDAY LETTER

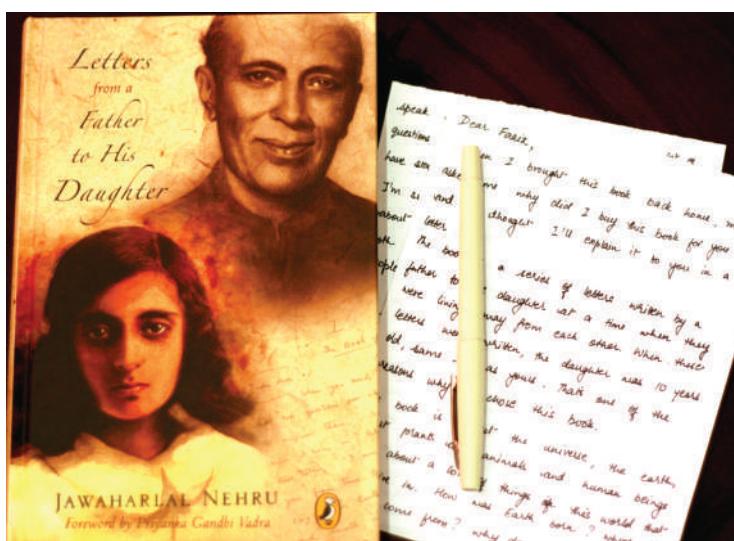

Central Prison,
Naini.

October 26, 1930.

My dear Indira,

On your birthday you have been in the habit of receiving presents and good wishes. Good wishes you will still have in full measure, but what present can I send you from Naini Prison? My presents cannot be very material or solid. They can be of the mind and spirit.... Things that even the high walls of a prison cannot stop.

You know, sweetheart, how I dislike sermonising and doling out good advice.... I have always thought that the best way to find out what is right and what should be done is not by giving a sermon. It has to be done by talking and discussing. Out of discussion sometimes a little bit of truth comes out. I have liked my talks with you and we have discussed many things. But the world is wide and beyond our world lie other wonderful and mysterious worlds. None of us need ever be bored or imagine that we have learned everything worth learning and become very wise.... But what am I to do then? A letter can hardly take the place of a talk; at best it is a one-sided affair. Imagine that I have made a suggestion to you for you to think over, as if we really were having a talk.

In history we read of great periods in the life of nations, of great men and women. Do you remember how fascinated you were when you first read the story of Jeanne d'Arc? Your ambition was to be something like her. Ordinary men and women are not usually heroic. They think of their bread and butter, of their children, of their household worries and the like. But a time comes when a whole people become interested in a great cause. Then history helps even simple, ordinary men and women to become heroes. Great leaders have something in them which inspires a whole people and makes them do great deeds.... In India a great leader, full of love for all who suffer and eager to help them, has inspired our people to great actions and noble sacrifice. He has helped to make the starving, the poor and the oppressed free and happy.

Bapuji is in prison, but the magic of his message has stolen the hearts of India's millions. Men and women, and even little children, come out of their little shells and become India's soldiers of freedom. In India today we are making history, and you and I are fortunate to see this happening before our eyes and to take some part ourselves in this great drama.

What part shall we play in it?

If we are to be India's soldiers we have to respect India's honour, and that honour is a sacred trust..... It is no easy matter to decide what is right and what is not. One little test I shall ask you to apply whenever you are in doubt.... Never do anything in secret or anything that you would wish to hide. For the desire to hide anything means that you are afraid, and fear is a bad thing and unworthy of you. Be brave, and all the rest follows....

Extended Reading

You know that in our great Freedom Movement, under Bapuji's leadership, there is no room for secrecy or hiding. We have nothing to hide. We are not afraid of what we do or what we say. We work in the sun and in the light. Even so in our private lives let us make friends with the sun and work in the light and do nothing secretly... and if you do so, my dear you will grow up a child of the light, unafraid and serene and unruffled, whatever may happen.

I have written a very long letter to you. And yet there is so much I would like to tell you.

How can a letter contain it? Good-bye, little one, and may you grow up into a brave soldier in India's service. With all my love and good wishes.

Your loving father,

Jawaharlal Nehru

Check how well you read

1. Here are some statements based on the letter. Put a tick mark (✓) in the right column for the statements that are true. Mark (x) the ones which are false. Correct the false statements and write them in the space given below the table.

Nehru was imprisoned for taking part in the freedom fight.
Indira never got any present as her birthday gift.
Nehru always enjoyed advising his daughter.
Writing a letter is not equal to a discussion as the former is one-sided.
In history we don't read of great periods in the life of nations, of great men and women.
The desire to hide anything shows that you are brave.
Under Bapuji's leadership there is no scope for secrecy or hiding.
Nehru wrote a short letter to Indira.

I WROTE MYSELF A LETTER

Here's a poem that tells you about a man who wrote a letter to himself. What did he write in the letter? Read on...

I wrote myself a letter.
I mailed it right away.
And, sure enough, the carrier,
delivered it today.

I couldn't wait to get it.
I nearly had to shout.
I quickly tore the envelope
and pulled the letter out.

I anxiously unfolded it
but now I must concede,
I'm clueless as to what it says.
I haven't learned to read.

Who is the speaker in this poem?
Usually one does not write a letter to oneself. What made the poet write a letter to himself?
Which line in the poem shows that the poet is impatient to read the letter?
Why could not the poet read his own letter?

Activity 1

In Lencho's story, there are many expressions which appeal to our senses of sight, hearing, smell, taste and touch. For example:

'Fresh and sweet air' appeals to sense of smell.

'The field was white' appeals to sense of sight.

Find out from the story more expressions which appeal to your senses.

Activity 2

Look at the following expressions from the story.

a good harvest

new coins

a strong wind

In the above expressions the underlined words tell us more about the headwords, 'harvest', 'coins' and 'wind'. Here, the underlined words tell us about the number and quality of the headword.

Now, let's look at a few more examples and find out how the headwords are described.

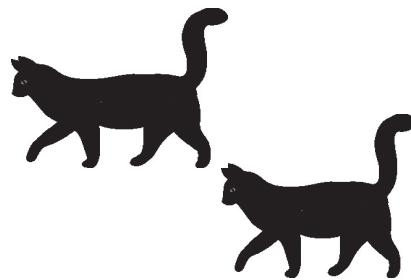

Look at the following.

Cats

Two cats

Two black cats.

Two small black cats.

Certain words are added to the word ‘cats’. These words tell us more about the cats, like their number, size and colour.

Look at the following.

Bag

A bag

A leather bag

A white leather bag

A big white leather bag

Flowers

Three flowers

Three yellow flowers

Three tiny yellow flowers

Three beautiful tiny yellow flowers

Boy

A boy

A little boy

A smart little boy

Identify the words in the above word pyramids which tell us about the number, quality, colour, shape, size, etc. of the objects/persons. Write them in the relevant columns of the table overleaf.

Number/Quantity	Quality	Colour	Shape	Size	Headword

You can also find such describing words from the story and list them in the columns.

Read the story given below. Some words are underlined. Make the story more interesting by adding describing words to them similar to the ones you have listed above in the columns.

A sparrow laid small eggs in her nest on a tree. An egg hatched. A chick peeped out. The sparrow brought worms for the birdie. The birdie ate them with its beak. Days passed by. One morning, the mother sparrow flew out of the nest. The chick opened its cute eyes and looked out . She saw flowers, leaves and fruits on plants and trees. She opened her wings and flapped them.

Add describing words before the underlined words and rewrite the story.

Activity 3

You have met a farmer, a postman and a postmaster in the story ‘Letter to God’. Read the following song and find out what the people of the town do.

PEOPLE IN MY TOWN

I see a fire-fighter fighting fires,
I see a car mechanic changing tyres,
I see a pilot flying through the air,
I see a barber cutting people’s hair,
I see the people in my town and I say... Hey brother!
What’s going on?
I see a postman with the mail,
I see a policeman putting folk in jail,
I see a lifeguard at the swimming pool,
I see the teachers at the local schools,
I see the people in my town and I say... Hey brother!
What’s going on?
Doctors, nurses, astronauts, judges, lawyers in the courts,
I see an actor acting on the stage,
I see a writer writing on a page,
I see a chef working in a restaurant,
And a waiter asking what you want,
I see the people in my town and I say... Hey brother!
What’s going on?
Doctors, nurses, astronauts, judges, lawyers in the courts,
I see the people in my town and I say... Hey brother!
What’s going on?
I say... Hey brother!
What’s going on?

- What different occupations are mentioned in the song?
Make a list of them.
- What do you want to be when you grow up? Why?

Activity 4

Look at the following pictures, identify the occupations and write the names of the occupations in the boxes given below each picture.

fire-fighter, mechanic, pilot, hairdresser, postman, policewoman, lifeguard, teacher, doctor, musician, astronaut, artist, lawyer, nurse, actor, writer, chef, waiter, dentist, carpenter

Activity 5

We need help from other people on different occasions.
Who will you approach on the following occasions?

- You want to make a table
- You want to get your hair cut
- You want to paint your house
- When you are ill
- When a thief breaks into your house
- When a fire breaks out
- When your bicycle needs repair
- You want to change a water tap

Activity 6

The postmaster in the story said, 'I wish I had the faith of the man who wrote this letter.'

The postmaster expressed his strong wish here.

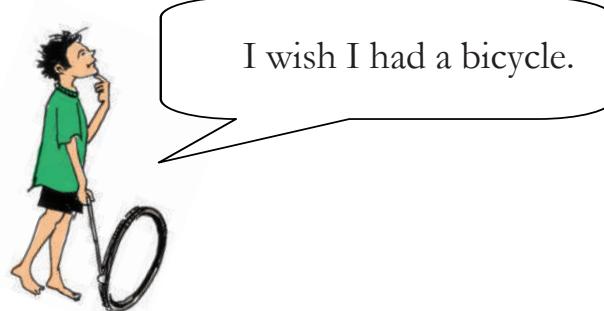

Now, look at the following.

Suja has to do a project on the topic 'Rivers of India'. But she can't find any books to refer to. There is no library near her house.

Look at how she expresses her wish.

Tom always thinks of buying a bicycle. But his father says he will buy a bicycle for him only after two years. He felt very disappointed.

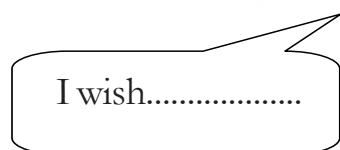

I wish I had a bicycle.

Here, Suja and Tom express their feelings using 'I wish...'. Look at the pictures below. Complete the sentences beginning with 'I wish...'.

The School Post Office

Visit a post office. What are the name boards and counters you see there? Who are the employees in the post office?

Let's set up a post office in the school. Prepare name boards and place them in the right counters. Don't forget to fix a post box.

Assign roles of postmaster, postmen, postal assistants, etc. to your classmates.

Let others write letters to their friends in the class and post them. The postman will collect the letters from the post box and deliver them to the addressees. Those who get letters may write replies and post them.

Editing

Here is a description of Lenchö's village. There are certain errors in it. They are underlined. Edit them.

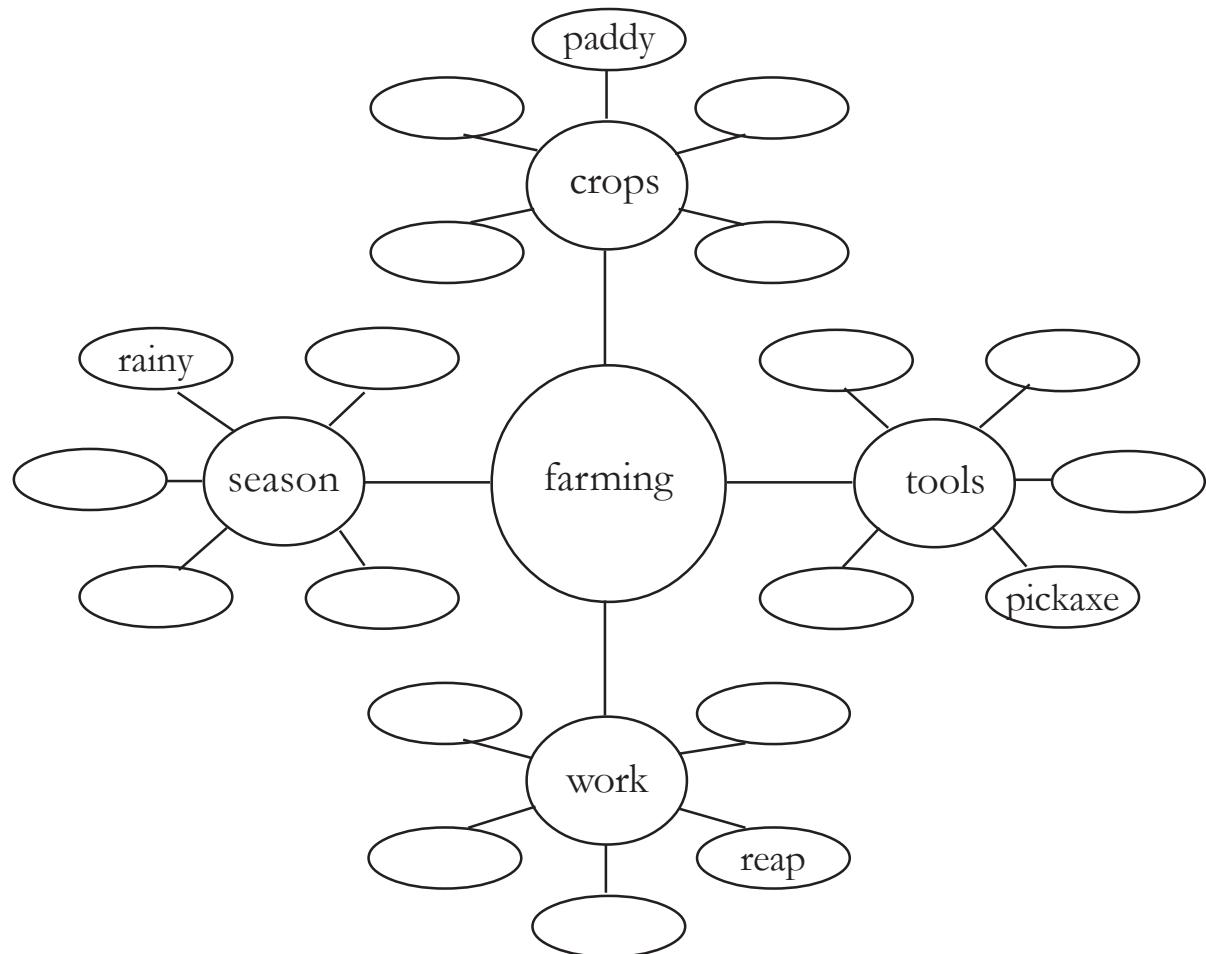

The morning sun rose up in the sky. The snow, covering the field, slowly begin to melt.

Leaves of grass peeped in clear water. The branches on the trees was free of snow. The birds flew in and on the branches sat. They dried their wing in the warm sun.

UNIT 3

THE LITTLE GIRL AND THE UMBRELLA

Look at the children in the picture.

Do all children get good food and clothing?

Do all of them live in houses with basic facilities?

Do all of them get education?

Do children have rights for protection and care?

Have you ever felt that your rights have been violated?

How should parents and teachers behave towards children?

How should children behave towards parents and teachers?

A GIRL IN THE RAIN

Now, let's read the opening chapter of the famous novel 'Oru Kudayum Kunjupengalam' by Muttath Varkey and see if the rights of the little girl and her brother were violated or not.

The sky was cloudy. A cold breeze was blowing languidly. The trees on both sides of the country road were swaying gently in the wind.

'Lily, it is going to rain. You go with Gracy.' Baby said pointing to the girl from the Poomangalam family, their rich neighbours.

'What about you?' Lily asked him.

'I'll run.' Baby started running.

The rain drops started falling. One, two, four....

The rain quickened.

1. 'Lily, you go with Gracy,' Baby said. Why did Baby say so?

THE RAIN

Lily also ran holding her slate and books against her chest. She felt the rain lashing her face. She placed the slate over her book. Even if the rain drops fell on the slate, nothing would happen. It would not get spoiled.

‘Gracy, can I too...?’ Lily begged and tried to get in under Gracy’s umbrella.

But Gracy moved away from Lily. Gracy’s neat clothes were made of fine silk. But Lily was clad in quite old and torn clothes.

2. Is it just a drizzle or a heavy downpour? How does the author describe rain in the passage?

The Little Girl and the Umbrella

‘Gracy, please,’ Lily begged again.

‘Go away girl. I won’t let you in under my umbrella,’ Gracy said stubbornly.

Lily could not control her tears. She wept bitterly. The rain also was quite cruel to her. It came down heavily on her.

Lily ran on and on thoroughly wet. Heavy drops of rain fell on her face like pebbles falling from the sky. Muddy water ran against her little feet.

3. Why did Lily weep bitterly?

TEARS OF RAIN

Lily took shelter in the verandah of a small shop on the country road. Her clothes and books were wet. What really upset her was her books getting wet. Standing in a corner of the verandah she started sobbing. She saw Gracy passing by with her umbrella. The raindrops flowing down from Lily's hair blurred her eyes as they mixed with her tears. The bitter cold made her shiver and her teeth started to chatter. Her dress was now completely drenched in the rain. She placed her slate and books on the floor. She squeezed the edges of her skirt to wring water from it. The edges of the skirt split. It was a very old skirt, the only one she had. At home she always had to change into a bath towel.

4. Lily saw Gracy passing by holding her umbrella open. What might Lily's feelings be?

5. We usually enjoy playing in the rain. But Lily could not enjoy the rain. Why?

6. Cite an expression which suggests that Lily belongs to a poor family.

LOST CHILDHOOD

Lily and her brother Baby had lost both their parents. Their father died three years ago and their mother, about a year ago. They now lived with their aunt, their mother's elder sister. The fat dark aunt with a flat nose was a fifty year old widow.

She had a son in the army who sent her twenty rupees every month. She was known to be a tight-fisted woman. She had no land of her own. She lived in a hut on a plot owned by the Poomangalam family for whom she worked as a maid. The money sent by her son was deposited in a private bank. But after a few months the bank collapsed. The loss of money was unbearable to her and she started showing signs of insanity.

7. How does the author describe the aunt?

She took out all her anger on her niece Lily. She behaved like a devil to her niece and nephew and often beat them up. She hated the children going to school. She ordered them to draw water from well, wash clothes and do all the cooking.

Baby was eleven years old and was studying in class four. Lily, three years younger, was in class two. They were, perhaps, the poorest children in their school.

8. Do you think children should do such works? Why?

A BRUISE

Lily sighed as the second bell rang at school. The rain showed no sign of stopping or slowing down. The cold wind was still blowing.

If she was late for the classes, her teacher would scold her. At times she would beat her too. Lily started running to school. The rain drenched her clothes again.

She held her books and slate close to her chest. Suddenly she slipped and fell on the road. Her skirt was soiled and got torn. Her knees were bruised and blood oozed out. Still she felt no pain. A page of her book was torn; her slate was broken as well. She stood in the rain and cried bitterly.

9. Why did Lily feel no pain though blood oozed out of her bruise?

The Little Girl and the Umbrella

When she reached school, some children began laughing at her. The teacher banged the cane on the table and everybody became silent. The teacher glared at Lily.

'Why did you come drenched in the rain? Don't you have an umbrella?'

'No, teacher,' said Lily wiping her tears with her hand.

'Go and stand in the verandah. You'll dirty the classroom,' the teacher pointed to the verandah. Lily saw Gracy giggling. Her heart sank. The rain had stopped. But tears still rolled out of her cheeks.

10. The teacher did not allow Lily to enter the class. What do you think about the teacher?

11. Lily saw Gracy giggling. Why did Gracy giggle? What was its effect on Lily?

A SATURDAY MORNING

‘Tom!’

No answer.

‘Tom!’

No answer.

‘Where can he be?’ Aunt Polly asked herself. ‘He must be somewhere here!’

She went to the door, looked out into the garden and shouted again, ‘Tom! Tom!’

No answer.

The old lady stood there thoughtfully. Suddenly she heard a sound behind her. She turned round quickly. There was Tom near the cupboard door. He had jam all over his face. ‘What have you been doing?’ Aunt Polly asked angrily. When Tom did not answer, she went on, ‘You’ve been stealing jam again. Don’t tell me that you haven’t. Haven’t I told you a hundred times to keep away from that cupboard? Where’s the stick?’ Aunt Polly took her stick and raised it high. She was about to strike Tom hard.

‘Look behind you, Auntie!’ shouted Tom. Aunt Polly looked behind her. This was Tom’s chance. He rushed out of the house. He climbed over the fence. Soon he was far away. Aunt Polly was angry but she laughed. ‘He’s a bad boy,’ she said to herself. ‘But I love him. He’s my poor dead sister’s boy, and I must look after him. I don’t like to hit him, though I have to at times. If I don’t punish him, he’ll grow up lazy and wicked. Yes I must be strict.’ Aunt Polly sighed. ‘I’ll have to punish him for stealing the jam. But how? I know tomorrow is Saturday and there’s no school on Saturdays. The boys have a holiday. But I’ll make Tom work. That will punish him.’

The next day, Saturday, was a holiday for the school. All the boys in the village were free. It was a beautiful day. The sun was shining and the birds were singing. The trees and flowers looked fresh and lovely. Tom, of course, wanted to go swimming. All other boys were going swimming.

Tom came sadly out of the house. He held a long brush in one hand. In the other he carried a bucket full of whitewash. His aunt asked him to whitewash the fence. Tom looked sadly at the fence. ‘How high it is! How long it is!’ he thought. Indeed the height of the fence was nine feet and its length was thirty yards. Tom put his brush into the whitewash. He drew it slowly across the fence. It made a very small white mark. Tom tried again. Another very small white mark. Tom sat down and sighed heavily.

He took out all the things that he had in his pockets. He had some marbles, some pieces of string and two or three broken toys.

‘No one will whitewash the fence for these,’ he thought. ‘No, I must think of a better plan.’ He thought and thought. Soon he had an idea.

He picked up his brush again and began working hard. Ben Rogers was coming down the street. Tom pretended not to see him. He worked harder than ever. Ben was eating an apple. He looked very happy. He was pretending that he was a big ship and was rolling like one. He gave orders in a loud voice and the ship obeyed them. He came up to Tom. He rubbed his eyes. ‘Why, Tom,’ he cried in great surprise, ‘you’re working?’

Tom said nothing. He went on with his whitewashing. He seemed very much interested in his work.

‘Tom, you’re working,’ Ben repeated.

‘Oh, it’s you, Ben. I didn’t notice you.’

‘I’m just going for a swim. You don’t want to come, do you? You like working, don’t you?’

‘This isn’t work,’ Tom said quietly and went on painting.

‘Not work!’ Ben exclaimed.

‘Oh no, I like it. Whitewashing is fun. You’ve never whitewashed a fence, have you?’

‘Well, no I haven’t.’

For a while, Ben stood there watching Tom. Tom paid no attention to him. All his attention was given to his work.

At last Ben said, 'Let me whitewash a little'.

'Oh, no, Ben. I'm going to make this fence look fine. I've promised Aunt Polly. Besides, it's so interesting.'

'Let me do just a little,' begged Ben.

'No, I'm sorry, Ben, but I can't. Aunt said that I must do it myself. If you do it, you'll make a mistake. You'll spoil everything. It's looking so nice now.'

'I shan't make a mistake. I'll be careful. You can have my apple if you let me.'

Slowly and unwillingly, Tom handed the brush to Ben. Ben worked hard. It soon grew hot, but he went on working. Tom sat there, watching and eating Ben's apple. When Ben had done enough, other boys came along. At first they laughed at Tom, as Ben had done. But soon they too were whitewashing the fence!

Of course, they had to pay Tom before he let them help him. They gave him their best things - twelve marbles, a tin soldier, a key, a dog's collar, the handle of a knife and four pieces of an orange. Tom had an easy time. He did not work but soon the fence had three coats of whitewash on it.

Check how well you have read

1. You have read the story 'A Saturday Morning', haven't you? Here are some pictures which represent a few events in the story. They are given in a jumbled order. Number them in the order as they happen in the story.

Now, you may retell the story based on the pictures.

HAPPINESS

So early it's still almost dark out.
I'm near the window with coffee,
And the usual early morning stuff
That passes for thought.

When I see the boy and his friend
Walking up the road
To deliver the newspaper,
They wear caps and sweaters,
And one boy has a bag over his shoulder.
They are so happy
They aren't saying anything, these boys.
I think if they could, they would take
Each other's arm.
It's early in the morning,
And they are doing this thing together.
They come on slowly.
The sky is taking on light,
Though the moon still hangs pale over the water
Such beauty that for a minute

Death and ambition, even love,
Doesn't enter into this.

Happiness. It comes on Unexpectedly. And goes beyond, really,
Any early morning talk about it.

‘I have a talking parrot,’ Jeena said.

Binu and Mubeena went to Jeena’s house.

They saw a parrot. It could speak.

‘It is an English parrot,’ Jeena said .

‘Make it speak,’ Mubeena said.

‘What is your colour?’ Jeena asked her parrot.

‘I am green,’ the parrot replied.

‘Wow! It is really an English parrot.’

Binu and Mubeena said together. They went near the parrot and stretched their hands to touch it.

‘Listen friends, Be careful! If you don’t ask questions it will get angry and peck you.’ Binu and Mubeena were worried.

They did not know how to ask questions.

‘I can help you. See what I ask,’ Jeena said.

Jeena: Where is your mother?

Parrot: My mother is in London.

Jeena: Mubeena, now it is your turn.

‘Who are you?’ Mubeena asked in a low voice.

The parrot was happy. It replied: ‘I am a parrot’

'Oh, that's good. Come on Binu, now you try.'
Can you help Binu frame some questions?

Look at the cartoon given below:

What might the policeman ask the driver?

What reply did the driver give?

Do you think he was telling the truth? Why?

What message does the cartoon give us?

The cartoon humourously conveyed the message against rash driving.

Here's a policeman who rushed to the spot where an accident occurred.

He asked a few questions to the driver.

The answers the driver gave are given below.

Guess the questions the policeman asked and write them in the table below.

Unit 4	The Happy Prince	111
Unit 5	The Great Adventure	146

UNIT 4THE HAPPY PRINCE*Helping Hands

It was Friday night. Mithun was relaxing in a chair. He was watching his favourite TV show. His mother was in the kitchen cleaning dishes, pots and pans. Feeling tired, she decided to take rest for some time. Mithun noticed his mother going to bed early. He asked, 'Are you alright, mom?'

'I'm okay, but I need to take rest for a while,' she replied.

Mithun felt a bit sorry. 'I should've helped Mother,' he thought. He felt very guilty. He got up and went to the kitchen. He cleaned every pan and pot. He washed all the dishes and scrubbed every little spot. The kitchen looked very clean and seemed to sparkle. Mithun was really happy since he had made a difference.

After a while, when Mithun's mother woke up and went to the kitchen to finish the rest of the work, she was really surprised. She could not believe her eyes. The kitchen was so clean. She was very happy that her son had helped her. She went to Mithun's bed and hugged him. 'Thank you my dear for caring me so much. You are really a nice child.' Mithun understood then that helping others makes them happy and it makes one happy too.

How did Mithun help his mother?

If you were in Mithun's place, what would you do?

Do you think Mithun is 'a nice child'?

Do you help your parents in household work?

THE HAPPY PRINCE

There was a prince in a faraway land, who was always happy. When he died, the courtiers of the palace made the statue of the Happy Prince and put it up high in the town. Now, read on....

High above the city, on a tall column, stood the statue of the Happy Prince. He was gilded all over with thin leaves of fine gold; for eyes he had two bright sapphires and a large red ruby glowed on his sword-hilt.

He was very much admired indeed. ‘Be like the Happy Prince. He never cries for anything,’ said a mother to her little boy who was crying for the moon.

‘I am glad there is someone in the world who is quite happy,’ muttered a disappointed man.

1. Why did the people admire the statue of the Happy Prince?

2. Pick out the sentences that show people’s admiration for the Happy Prince.

THE LITTLE SWALLOW

One night there flew over the city a little swallow. His friends had gone away to Egypt to save themselves from the approaching winter.

'Where shall I stay?' he asked himself. Then he saw the statue on the tall column. 'I will stay there,' he cried. He alighted just between the feet of the Happy Prince.

'I have a golden bedroom,' he said. When he put his head under his wing a large drop of water fell on him.

'What a curious thing!' he cried, 'there is not a single cloud in the sky, the stars are quite clear and bright, and yet it is raining.'

Then another drop fell.

'I must look for another place,' he said and was about to fly away. But before he had opened his wings, a third drop fell, and he looked up, and saw - Ah!

3. Have you seen birds making nests? Where do they nest?

4. Why did the swallow decide to stay between the feet of the statue?

5. There were no clouds in the sky. Then, from where did the drops of water come?

THE TEARS

The eyes of the Happy Prince were filled with tears, and tears were running down his golden cheeks. His face was so beautiful in the moonlight that the little swallow was filled with pity.

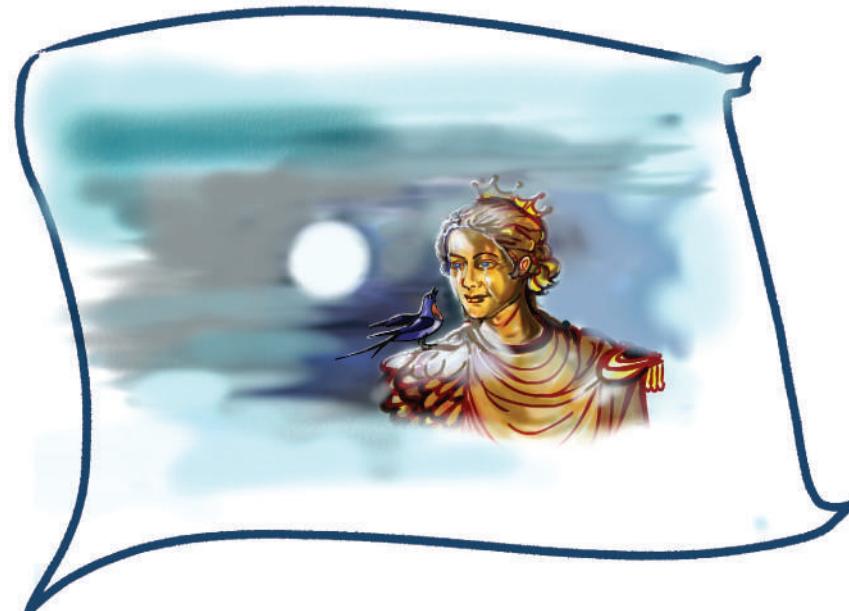

'Who are you?' he asked.

'I am the Happy Prince.'

'Why are you weeping then?' asked the swallow.

'When I was alive I did not know what tears were. I lived in the palace. Sorrow was not allowed to enter there. Everything about me was so beautiful. My courtiers called me the

6. Why was the prince not aware of tears when he was alive?

Happy Prince, and happy indeed I was if pleasure be happiness.

So I lived, and so I died. And now that I am dead, they have set me up here high. I can see all the ugliness and the misery of my city, and though my heart is made of lead, I cannot but weep.'

7. What made the Happy Prince sad?

THE REQUEST

'Far away,' continued the statue in a low musical voice, 'far away in a little street there is a poor house. One of the windows is open, and through it I can see a woman seated at a table. She is so tired. In a bed in the corner of the room her little boy is lying ill. He has a fever, and is asking for oranges. His mother has nothing to give him but river water, so he is crying.'

'Swallow, Swallow, little Swallow, will you not bring her the ruby out of my sword-hilt?'

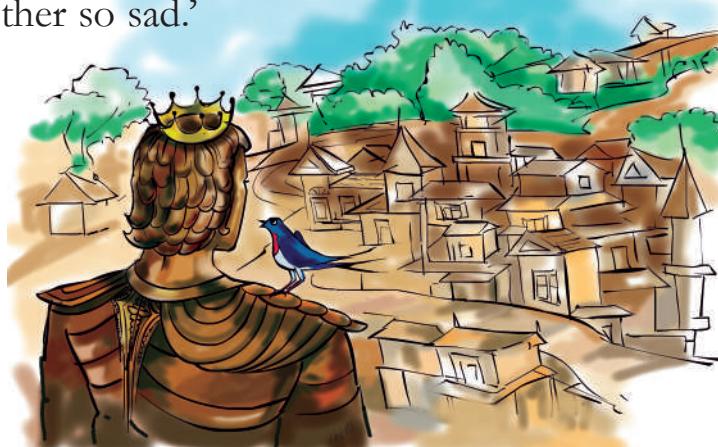

'I am waited for in Egypt,' said the swallow.

'My friends are flying up and down the Nile.'

'Swallow, Swallow, little Swallow,' said the Prince, 'will you not stay with me for one night and be my messenger? The boy is so thirsty and the mother so sad.'

8. Why was the boy crying?

9. Why was the swallow not ready to help the woman at first?

'I don't think I like boys,' answered the swallow. 'Last summer, when I was staying on the riverside, there were two rude boys who always threw stones at me. They never hit me, of course; we swallows fly far too well for that.'

10. Why do some children throw stones at animals and birds? Have you ever prevented them?

THE MESSENGER

The Happy Prince looked so sad that the swallow was sorry. ‘It is very cold here,’ he said, ‘but I will stay with you for one night, and be your messenger.’

‘Thank you, little Swallow,’ said the Prince.

So the Swallow picked out the ruby from the Prince’s sword, and flew away with it in his beak over the roofs of the town.

At last he came to the poor house and looked in. The boy was tossing feverishly on his bed and the mother had fallen asleep. He laid the ruby on the table. Then he flew gently round the bed, fanning the boy’s forehead with his wings.

Then the swallow flew back to the Happy Prince, and told him what he had done.

‘I feel quite warm now, although it is so cold.’ ‘That is because you have done a good deed,’ said the Prince. The swallow fell asleep.

11. Why did the swallow agree to be the messenger of the Happy Prince?

12. Why did the swallow feel so warm?

13. Will the swallow join his friends the next day?

THE WRITER

The next morning, the Prince said, ‘Swallow, Swallow, little Swallow, far away across the city I see a young man. He is leaning over a desk covered with papers. His hair is brown and crisp and his lips are red as a pomegranate. He is trying to finish a play. Hunger has made him faint.’

‘I will wait with you here one night longer,’ said the swallow. ‘Shall I take him another ruby?’ ‘Alas! I have no ruby now,’ said the Prince, ‘my eyes are all that I have left. They are made of rare sapphires, brought out of India a thousand years ago. Pluck out one of them and take it to him.’

‘Dear Prince,’ said the swallow, ‘I cannot do that,’ and he began to weep.

‘Swallow, Swallow, little Swallow,’ said the Prince, ‘do as I command you.’

So the swallow plucked out the Prince’s eye and flew away to the young man. The young man did not hear the flutter of the bird’s wings. When he looked up he found the beautiful sapphire. ‘I am beginning to be appreciated,’ he cried, ‘this is from some great admirer. Now I can finish my play,’ and he looked quite happy.

14. ‘I will wait with you one night longer,’ said the swallow. Why did the swallow decide so?

15. Why didn’t the writer notice the swallow?

16. Why did the writer think that he was being appreciated?

THE LITTLE GIRL

The next day the swallow flew back to the Happy Prince.

'I've come to bid you goodbye,' he cried.

'Swallow, Swallow, little Swallow,' said the Prince, 'will you not stay with me one night longer?'

'It is winter,' answered the swallow, 'and the chill snow will soon be here. Dear Prince, I must leave you, but I will never forget you.'

'In the square below,' said the Prince, 'there stands a little match-girl. She has let her matches fall in the gutter, and they are all spoiled. Her father will beat her if she does not bring home some money. She has no shoes, no stockings and no sweater. Pluck out my

17. Why did the swallow want to leave the city?

18. Who did the Prince wish to help this time? Why?

'I cannot pluck out your eye. You would be quite blind then,' said the Swallow.

'Swallow, Swallow, little Swallow,' said the Prince, 'do as I command you.'

So he plucked out the Prince's other eye, and darted down with it. He saw the girl. He slipped the jewel into the palm of her hand.

'What a lovely bit of glass,' cried the little girl and she ran home laughing.

Then the Swallow came back to the Prince. 'You are blind now,' he said, 'so I will stay with you always.'

'No, little Swallow,' said the poor Prince, 'you must go away to Egypt.'

'I will stay with you always,' said the swallow and he slept at the Prince's feet.

19. Pick out the sentence that tells us that the swallow has a 'good heart'.

THE CITY SIGHTS

'Dear little Swallow,' said the Prince, 'Fly over my city, and tell me what you see there.'

The swallow flew over the great city, and saw the rich making merry while the beggars were sitting at the gates. He flew into dark lanes, and saw the white faces of starving children.

Then he flew back and told the Prince what he had seen.

'I am covered with fine gold,' said the Prince, 'you must take it off, leaf by leaf, and give it to my poor people. They always think that gold can make them happy.'

Leaf after leaf of the fine gold, the swallow picked off, till the Happy Prince looked quite dull and grey. He took it to the poor, and the children's faces grew rosier and they laughed and played games in the street. 'We have bread now!' they cried.

20. What sights did the swallow see in the great city?

21. Did the gold given by the Prince make the people in the city happy? How do we know?

THE SACRIFICE

Then the snow came. The poor little swallow grew colder and colder, but he would not leave the Prince, he loved him too well. He tried to keep himself warm by flapping his wings.

But at last he knew that he was going to die. He had just strength to fly up to the Prince's shoulder once more. 'Goodbye, dear Prince!' he murmured.

'I am glad that you are going to Egypt at last, little Swallow,' said the Prince.

'It is not to Egypt that I am going,' said the swallow. He fell down dead at his feet.

At that moment a curious crack sounded inside the statue, as if something had broken. The leaden heart had snapped right in two.

22. 'It is not to Egypt that I am going', the swallow said. Where did the swallow go?

23. What happened to the Prince?

THE TRAGIC END

Early the next morning the Mayor was walking in the square below in company with the Town Councillors. As they passed the column he looked up at the statue: 'Dear me! How shabby the Happy Prince looks!' he said. 'And here is actually a dead bird at his feet!' continued the Mayor. 'As he is no longer beautiful, he is no longer useful. It's time we pulled down this statue.' So they pulled down the statue of the Happy Prince.

24. Why did the Mayor decide to pull down the statue?

- Oscar Wilde

THE PIED PIPER OF HAMELIN

Hamelin was a small town in Germany. The town was full of rats. They were in houses, inns, shops, schools and in every street. Rats became a serious problem. Everyone wanted to find a solution for it.

The Mayor had often held meetings with the people of the town to discuss the problem. In the beginning they thought that cats would drive away the rats. But it was very difficult to find large numbers of cats. They were in a real dilemma.

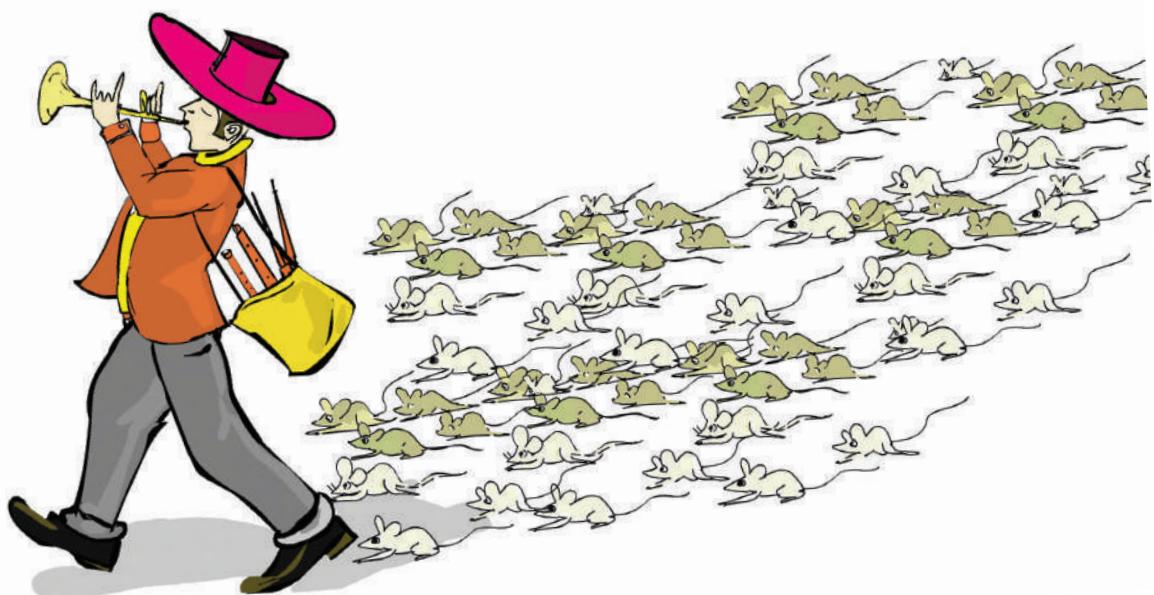

One day, a stranger came to the town of Hamelin. He carried a pipe with him. He had a stern look and walked straight to the Mayor's office. He faced the Mayor of Hamelin and said, 'It is well-known across Germany that Hamelin has a problem of rats. I will get rid of all the rats. What would my reward be?' For a moment the Mayor was stunned. It was difficult for him to believe that a single man could do it.

'Ten thousand gold coins from our treasury if you can do as you promise,' said the Mayor. The stranger nodded his head and said, 'In a day's time Hamelin will have no rats.'

The stranger walked out into the street, pulled out his pipe and started playing it. An eerie sound floated in the air. People of Hamelin could hear the beautiful tune from every corner of Hamelin and were paralyzed by the enchanting music.

All of a sudden, there was a ‘whirring’ noise. Thousands of rats came all the way from various directions. They followed the Piper. It seemed that the rats were mesmerized by the delightful music of the pipe. The stranger headed towards the sea, with all the rats of Hamelin behind him. It was an extraordinary sight for the folks of Hamelin.

The stranger played the pipe continuously and walked right into the sea. The rats followed him in large numbers and all of them were caught by the waves, which dragged them into the sea. All the rats of Hamelin were drowned. The strange piper thus got rid of all the rats. He kept his word.

The stranger approached the Mayor for his reward. The Mayor and the town’s people enjoyed watching the bizarre sight. But the Mayor had changed his mind. When the stranger went to him, he said, ‘It is a wonderful task you have accomplished, but isn’t ten thousand gold coins a hefty reward for a day's work? I will pay you five hundred gold coins.' The stranger looked at the Mayor and then walked out.

In the street, he pulled out his pipe again and started playing it. This time it was a different sound, but eerie as well. All the children of Hamelin started to follow the stranger.

He walked out of town and disappeared into the mountains. The children followed him. Their parents wept. Where had the stranger taken their children? They complained to the Mayor. But he was helpless. He felt guilty that he had been dishonest with the stranger.

SING, LITTLE BIRDIE

Sing, little birdie, sing
On topmost branches high!
And when thou spreadst thy airy wing,
Let not the sweet notes die.

But longer, louder be,
Until the echoes ring
That hide away where none may see,
But only hear them sing.

Methinks that I could stay
Forever with thee here,
And list thy strain the livelong day,
Forgetting sorrow's tear.

Project Work

Let's Make a Collage

Flying in the sky, the swallow saw a lot of human miseries in the city. Such miseries can be seen in the present world also. Visual media and newspapers bring reports and photographs of them. Try to make a collage, using pictures and news reports.

What kinds of miseries are mostly reported by the media?

Why do these kinds of miseries happen frequently?

How can we prevent such miseries?

Prepare a collage and write briefly on how to prevent these miseries.

THE GREAT ADVENTURE

Read the profiles given below.

STEPHEN WILLIAM HAWKING

Stephen William Hawking is a great physicist known for his work regarding Black Holes in space. He has authored several popular science books. Even at an early age, Hawking showed a passion for Science and Astronomy. At the age of twenty one, while studying at Cambridge, he was diagnosed with a serious disease. Gradually, he became entirely paralysed and his life got confined to a wheel chair. Despite his illness, he has done ground-breaking work in Physics and Astronomy.

VAIKOM VIJAYALAKSHMI

Vaikom Vijayalakshmi is a gifted singer with a unique voice. She is blind by birth. Right from early childhood, she showed extraordinary talent in singing. She could easily identify the raga of a song even if heard for the first time. She learned more than a hundred ragas without any formal training in music. She is also an expert at playing Gayathri Veena. She has performed at more than four hundred venues across India. She is also a playback singer. The song Katte Katte sung by her in the Malayalam movie Celluloid won great appreciation.

What, do you think, is the lesson we should learn from these persons?

How did they succeed in their respective fields?

THE GREAT ADVENTURE

Here's a story of a little girl named Totto-chan who encouraged a differently abled boy to climb a tree.

The students at Tomoe each had a tree in the school ground. They considered it as their own climbing tree. Totto-chan's tree stood on the edge of the school ground near the fence.

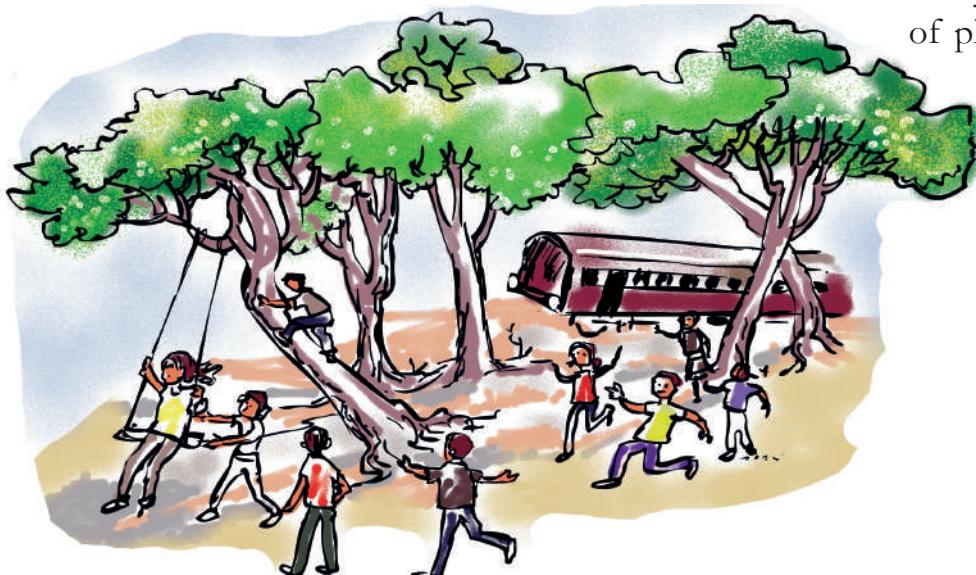

It was a large tree and slippery to climb, but if you climbed it skilfully you could get to a fork about six feet from the ground. The fork was as comfortable as a hammock. Totto-chan used to climb there during recess and after school. She would sit on the fork and look into the distance or at the sky, or watch the people pass by.

The children considered 'their' trees their own private property. If you wanted to climb someone else's tree you had to seek their permission very politely, saying, 'Excuse me, may I come in?'

1. Why do the children in Totto-chan's school seek permission to climb a tree?

2. Have you ever climbed a tree?
How did you feel then?

3. Do you have your own tree in school or at home? If not, can you think of planting one?

THE INVITATION

Yasuaki-chan had polio. He had never climbed a tree. So he couldn't claim any tree as his own. That is why Totto-chan decided to invite him to her tree. They kept it a secret. They thought people would create a fuss if they knew.

When she left home, Totto-chan told her mother that she was going to visit Yasuaki-chan at his home. She was telling a lie, so she tried not to look at Mother. She kept her eyes on her shoelaces. Rocky, her dog followed her to the station. When they parted company, she told Rocky the truth.

'I'm going to let Yasuaki-chan climb my tree!'

4. Why did Totto-chan invite Yasuaki-chan to climb her tree?

5. How will Totto-chan help Yasuaki-chan?

6. Totto-chan told a lie to her mother. But she revealed the truth to Rocky. What might be the reason?

YASUAKI-CHAN

When Totto-chan reached school, she found Yasuaki-chan waiting in the school ground. He was only a year older than Totto-chan, but he always sounded much older when he spoke. When Yasuaki-chan saw Totto-chan, he hurried toward her, dragging his leg and holding his arms out in front to steady himself. Totto-chan was thrilled to think they were going to do something secret and she giggled. Yasuaki-chan giggled too.

7. Pick out the sentence that describes how Yasuaki-chan walked?

8. Why did Totto-chan and Yasuaki -chan giggle?

THE CLIMB

Totto-chan led Yasuaki-chan to her tree. Then, she ran to the nearby shed and got a ladder. She dragged it over to the tree and leaned it against the trunk so that it reached the fork. She climbed up quickly and, holding the top of the ladder, called down, 'All right, try climbing up!'

Yasuaki-chan's arms and legs were very weak. It seemed he could not even get on the first rung without help.

9. How will Totto-chan help him climb the tree?

A FRIEND IN NEED

Totto-chan hurried down the ladder and tried pushing Yasuaki-chan up from behind. Yasuaki-chan took his foot off the bottom rung. He stood beside the ladder with his head bowed. Totto-chan realized that it was going to be very difficult. What should she do?

She longed to have Yasuaki-chan climb her tree. He was also looking forward to it. She went around and faced him. He looked cheerless. Totto-chan puffed out her cheeks and made a funny face to cheer him up.

'Wait! I've got an idea!'

10. What might be the idea?

11. What would you do if you were in Totto's position?

TOTTO-CHAN'S IDEA

Totto-chan ran back to the shed and pulled out many things one after another. She was looking for something that would help her. She finally discovered a stepladder. It would remain steady so she wouldn't have to hold it.

She dragged the stepladder over to the tree. She was amazed at her own strength. She was happy to find that the ladder almost reached the fork.

12. 'While dragging the ladder, Totto-chan was amazed at her own strength.' Why?

'Now, don't be afraid,' she said in a big-sisterly voice. 'This isn't going to wobble.'

Yasuaki-chan looked nervously at the stepladder. Then he looked at Totto-chan. She was drenched in perspiration. Yasuaki-chan was sweating too.

13. Would it be easy for Yasuaki-chan to get on to the tree?

He looked up at the tree. Then, with determination, he placed a foot on the first rung.

They were not aware of the time it took Yasuaki-chan to reach the top of the stepladder. The hot summer sun beat down. But they thought only about getting to the top of the stepladder. Totto-chan followed him lifting his feet up. Yasuaki-chan struggled with all his might, and finally reached the top.

'Hurray!'

14. Have you ever helped your friends like this?

THE STRUGGLE

Totto-chan jumped onto the fork. But she couldn't get Yasuaki-chan onto the tree from the stepladder. She wanted so badly to have Yasuaki-chan onto her tree. She wanted to show him all sorts of things. Clutching the stepladder, Yasuaki-chan looked at Totto-chan. She suddenly felt like crying.

But she didn't cry. She feared that if she did, Yasuaki-chan might start crying, too.

She took hold of his hand. It was bigger than hers and his fingers were longer too. They were all stuck together because of the polio. She held his hand for a long time. Then she said, 'Lie down. I'll try to pull you over.'

15. Totto-chan
felt like crying.
But she did not
cry. Why?

If any grown-ups had seen the scene they would have let out a scream. But Yasuaki-chan trusted Totto-chan completely. Totto-chan was risking her life for him. With her tiny hands clutching his, she pulled with all her might. From time to time a large cloud would mercifully protect them from the blistering sun. At last, the two stood face to face on the tree. Brushing her damp hair back, Totto-chan bowed politely to him and said, 'Welcome to my tree.'

Yasuaki-chan leaned against the trunk smiling rather bashfully and said, 'May I come in?'

16. Totto was risking her life for Yasuaki chan . What does this tell us about Totto-chan?

17. How did the clouds help them?

ON THE TOP OF THE WORLD

Yasuaki-chan was able to see vistas he had never glimpsed before. ‘So this is what it's like to climb a tree,’ he said happily.

They stayed on the tree for a long time and talked about all sorts of things.

‘My sister, in America, says they've got something there called television,’ said Yasuaki-chan with enthusiasm. ‘She says that when it comes to Japan we'll be able to sit at home and watch sumo wrestling. She says it's like a box.’ She simply wondered how sumo wrestlers could get inside a box in your own houses.

18. Yasuaki-chan was climbing a tree for the first time in his life. What could his feeling be?

Sumo wrestlers are so big! But it was fascinating all the same. In those days nobody knew about television. Yasuaki-chan was the first to tell Totto-chan about it.

The cicadas were singing and the two children were so happy. And for Yasuaki-chan it was the first and last time he ever climbed a tree.

This passage is taken from 'Totto-chan, the Little Girl at the Window' by Tetsuko Kuroyanagi, translated by Dorothy Britton. (adapted)

Let's review the story

1. Do you like Totto-chan's school? Why?
2. Why is climbing a tree interesting for the children?
3. Totto-chan cared for others very much. Pick out sentences from the story that show this.
4. 'If any grown-ups had seen the scene, they would have let out a scream.' Why would the grown-ups do so?
5. Did the children know that they were risking their lives?
6. Was Totto-chan right in making Yasuaki-chan climb the tree? Why?
7. Totto-chan climbed the tree. Later she made her friend climb the tree. Which experience do you think made her more happy? Why?

Let's write

1. Prepare the diary entry of Yasuaki-chan on the day he climbed the tree.

RIKKI TIKKI TAWI

It rained heavily all night. The sunlight was a little pale. Teddy, a young boy of ten, ran out into the garden. He saw a mongoose lying wet and still on the grass. 'Here's a dead mongoose,' Teddy called out to his mother. 'Let's bury him.'

'No,' said Teddy's mother. 'His heart is beating faintly. Perhaps he will live. Let's take him inside and dry him.'

Teddy's father wrapped him up in an old woollen muffler and placed him near the fire. The mongoose sneezed. Teddy and his parents were delighted. They gave him some meat and then took him outside. He sat in the sunlight and shook his fur till it was quite dry. He then shook his long fluffy tail till it looked like bottle brush.

Soon he started taking interest in Teddy and things around him. He followed Teddy around the house and into the garden. He slept in Teddy's room at night.

In the mornings, he came for breakfast sitting on Teddy's shoulder. Teddy gave him a banana and a boiled egg. The mongoose enjoyed the breakfast.

Soon Teddy and the little mongoose became good friends. The mongoose ran through the tall grass crying 'Rikky-tikk-tikki-tikki-tikk'. Teddy used to laugh at him and started calling him Rikki Tikki Tawi.

One morning, Rikki-Tikki was wandering about in the garden. There he saw Nag, the big cobra and his wife, Nagina. Cobras and mongooses are age-old enemies. Although Rikki-Tikki was young, he knew that the main objective of a mongoose's life is to fight and kill snakes.

Nag also knew that a mongoose in the garden meant death for him and his family. He was a full-grown snake and measured five feet from the tip of his tongue to the end of his tail. Rikki-Tikki was still a baby. He told himself, 'I won't fight Nag and Nagina when they are together.' So he jumped up high in the air and ran away.

It was night. Teddy carried Rikki to bed. As soon as the boy was asleep Rikki went off for his nightly walk round the house. Suddenly the silence was disturbed by a faint noise. It came from the bathroom of Teddy's parents.

Rikki-Tikki quickly entered the bathroom. He could hear Nag and Nagina talking on the other side of the bathroom drain.

Nagina told her husband, 'Bite and kill all three people in the house. The mongoose will go away when there is no one left in the house. We will then have the garden to ourselves.'

Then Rikki-Tikki saw Nag slithering into the bathroom through the drain. Although Rikki-Tikki was very angry he was also a little scared. Nag was so big and poisonous.

Nag waited for Teddy's father to come to the bathroom. He knew he would come at midnight. So he coiled himself up till he looked like a long rope arranged in the shape of a circle. Then Nag went to sleep. Rikki-Tikki hid behind the door and watched Nag.

When Nag was fast asleep, Rikki-Tikki jumped on to his head and dug his teeth into the snake's flesh. Nag was furious. He threw his head from side to side and poor Rikki-Tikki was thrown against the wall again and again. He was hurt and bleeding. But he did not let go his hold of Nag's head.

During the struggle Nag's tail upset the mug and soapdish. They fell to the ground with a loud thud. Rikki-Tikki thought he was going to die. Suddenly the wild duel stopped. Nag's head dropped down and did not stir thereafter. Teddy's father who had entered the bathroom hearing the loud thud had killed him.

He picked up, the bleeding Rikki-Tikki and went back to his bedroom. He asked his wife to put some medicine on Rikki's wounds.

'I killed the snake,' he said, 'but it is Rikki-Tikki who has saved our lives.'

Teddy's mother washed Rikki's wounds with medicine. She patted his little, sore head and gave him some toffees. Rikki-Tikki was happy. He fluffed up his tail and ran off to Teddy's room.

BED IN SUMMER

In Winter I get up at night
And dress by yellow candle light.
In Summer, quite the other way,
I have to go to bed by day.

I have to go to bed and see
The birds still hopping on the tree,
Or hear the grown-up people's feet
Still going past me in the street.

And does it not seem hard to you,
When all the sky is clear and blue,
And I should like so much to play,
To have to go to bed by day?

Robert Louis Stevenson

Who is the speaker of the poem? Is it a child or a grown-up person?

Why does the child have to dress up by candle light?

Why does the child have to stay in bed?

Have you had such an experience of being in bed while your friends were playing? How did you feel then?

Do grown-ups allow you to play whenever you want to? Do they control you always? What will you do then?

Are there children around you who have to be in bed while you are playing? Do you know them? What makes them lie in bed? What can you do for them?.

- If you move south from Jungle Circle, you  will reach Yasuaki-chan's house.

Activity 5

Study the following sentence taken from ‘The Great Adventure’. The children considered ‘their’ trees their own private property. If you want to climb someone else’s tree you have to seek their permission very politely, saying, ‘Excuse me, may I come in?’ Now, read the story given below.

Monkeys Go on Strike

A group of monkeys decided to go on a strike. The duration of the strike was from 6 am to 6 pm. They sat silently in a circle under a tree.

After sometime one of the monkeys broke the silence. ‘Can we collect some bananas so that we can eat them sharp at 6 pm?’ he asked the leader of the monkeys. The leader permitted them to do so. So the monkeys collected bananas and the fast began.

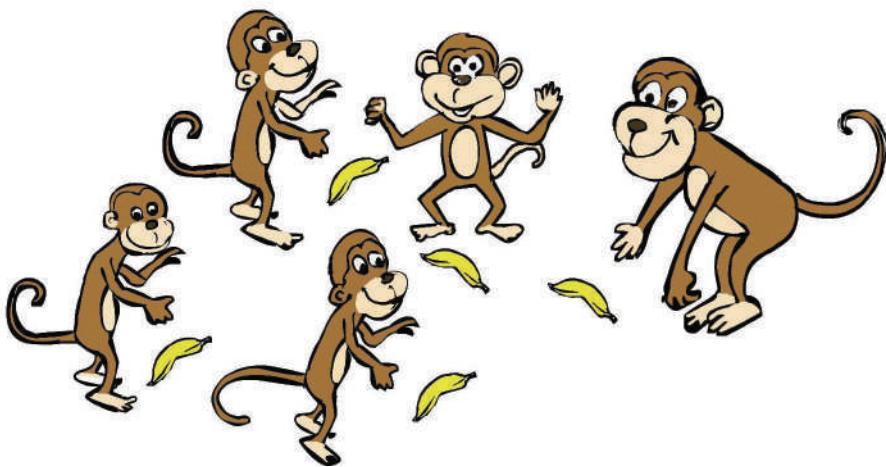

Some monkeys wanted to keep the bananas in their hands, some wanted to peel them, some others wanted to cut them into pieces. Yet another one wanted to keep the pieces in its mouth...but they needed the permission from the leader.

How will they seek permission? The rest of the story is given in pictures. Add dialogues to the bubbles.

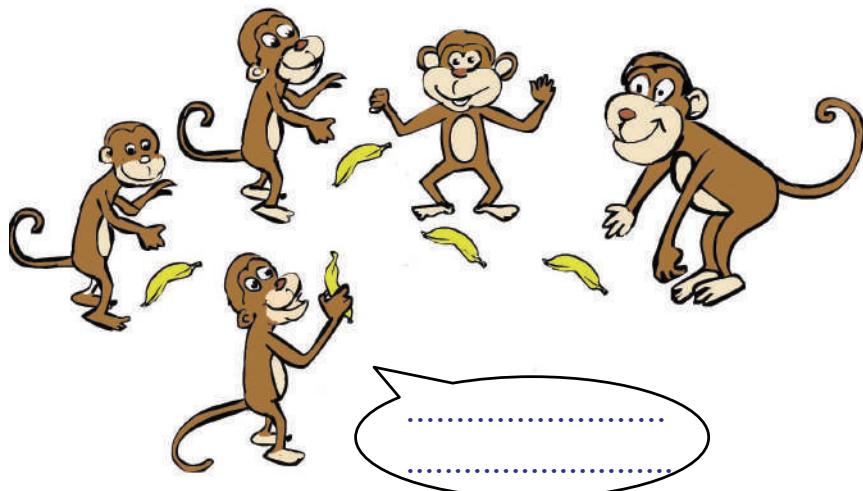

You can make use of the following expressions.

- Can I?
- May I....?
- Shall I....?
- Am I allowed to...?
- Would you mind...?
- Would it be all right if I...?
- Is it alright/Okay that...?
- Is there any chance of my....?

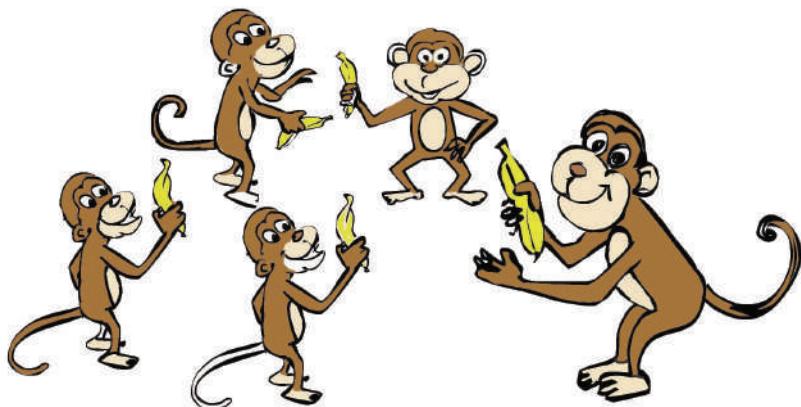

The monkeys collected bananas.

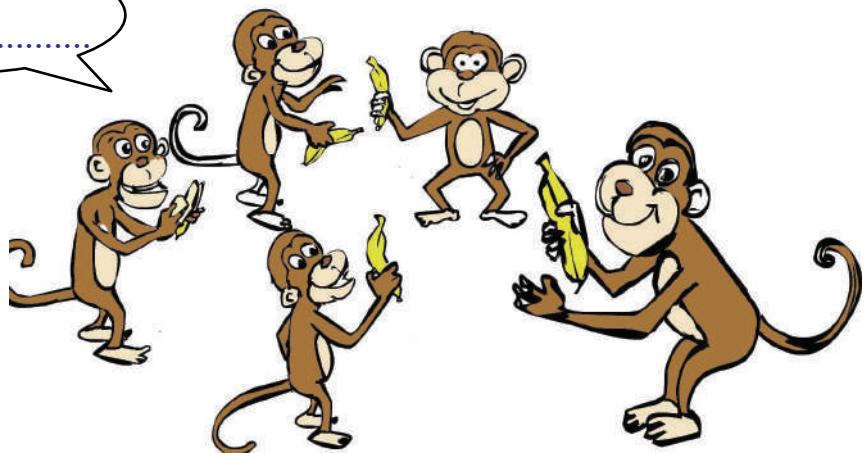

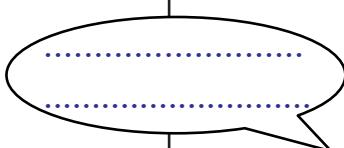

One of them asked:

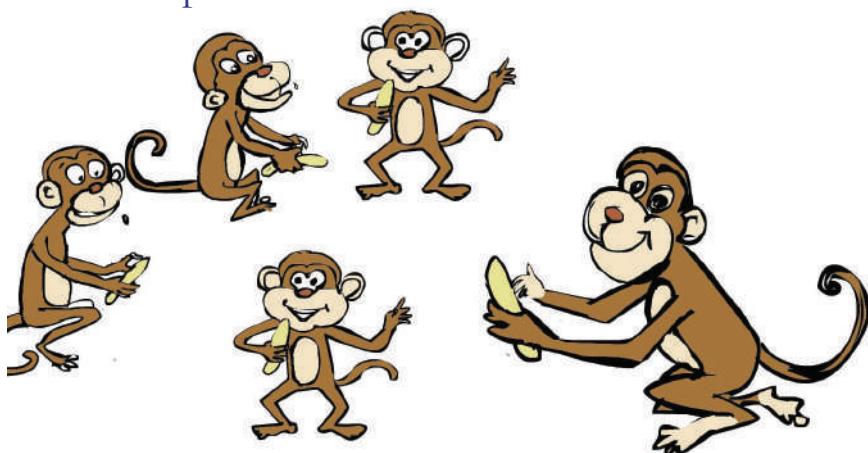

All of them took the bananas in their hands.

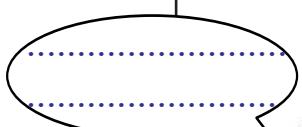

Another monkey asked:

All of them peeled the bananas.

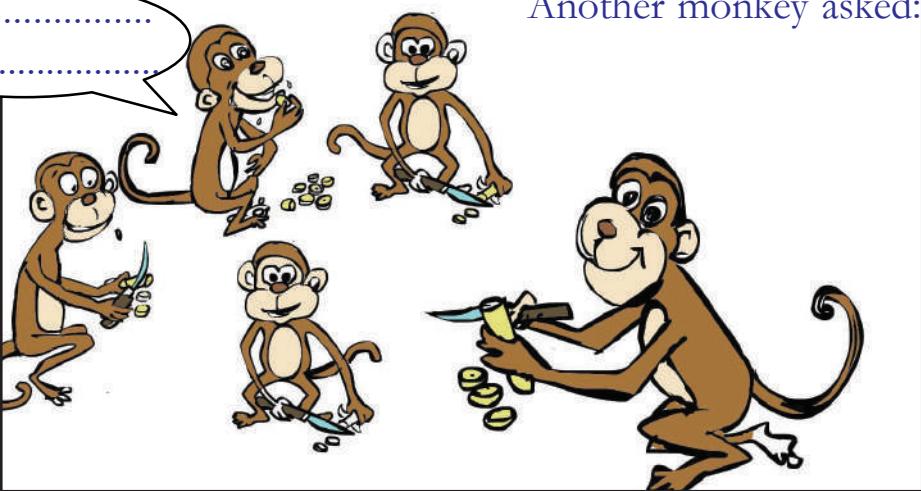

Yet another one asked:

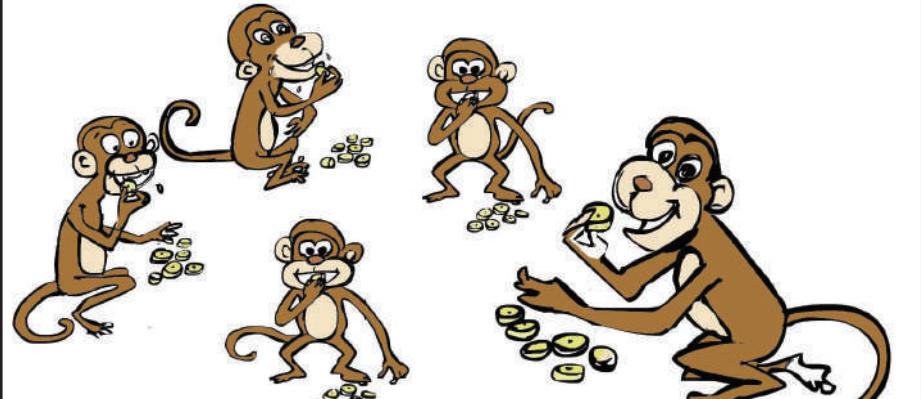

All of them cut the bananas into pieces.

Another monkey asked:

All of them ate the bananas.

Totto's Diary

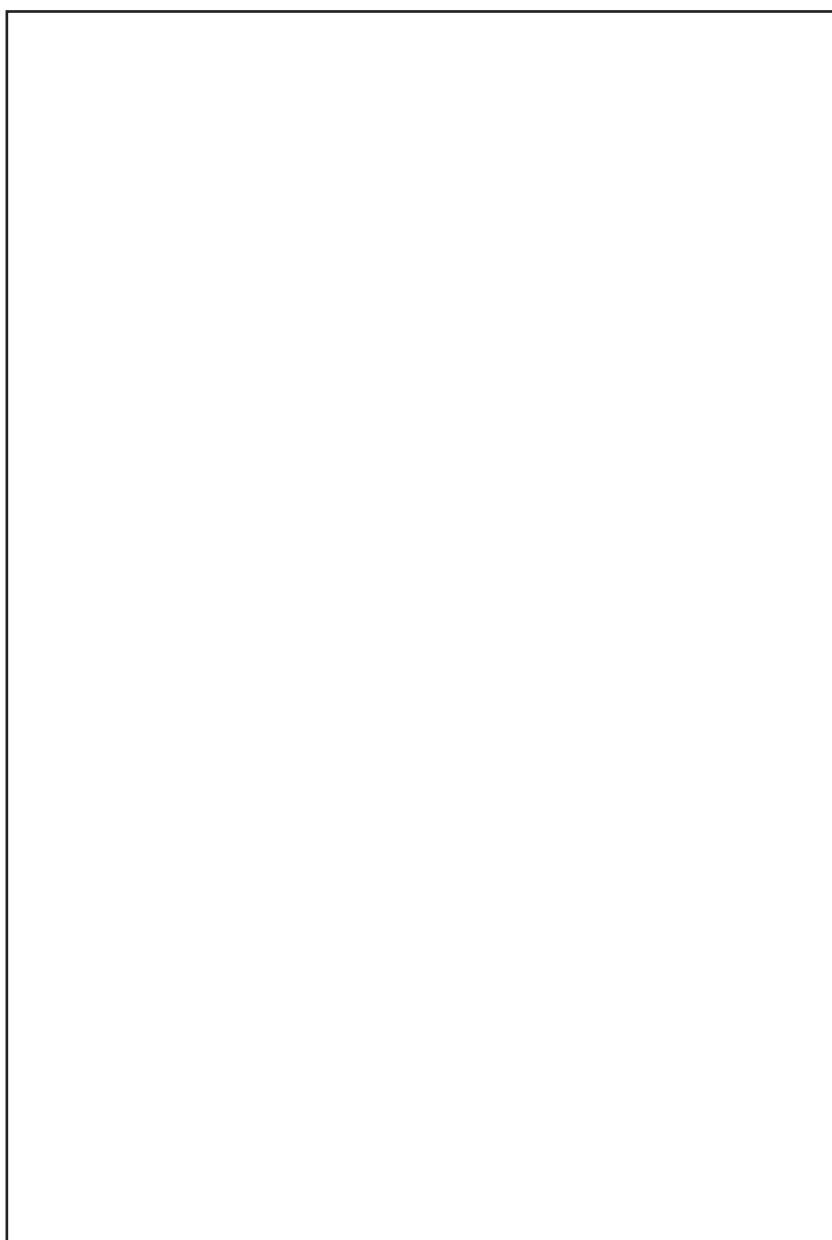

Like all other children at Tomoe, I too have a tree of my own. Yesterday I Yasuaki-chan invited to climb my tree. It was really a pleasant experience. Yasuaki-chan was thrill. He was wait for me when I reached the school. I pulled out a ladder from the shed near school. But Yasuaki-chan cannot climb it. Then I brought stepladder. Then Yasuaki-chan could climb to the top of the ladder. But he is not able to climb on to the tree. I pull him on to the tree. We sat on the fork of the tree. We talked for a long time. Yasuaki-chan tell me about television. He said that we could watch sumo wrestling in that box. But how can a sumo wrestler a small box get into! Is Yasuaki-chan telling a lie? No, he is my best friend. He don't tell a lie, especially to me.

Edit the passage and rewrite it.
